In these circumstances more and more one would naturally expect. Silliguri as a market, station is as dull and quiet as it ever was in its historical career. There are a few mere tents on the maidan, a great heap of what are called "supplies" in the station yards, horses and transport carts in the distance, a few new keen soldierly faces at meal-times in the refreshment rooms, and that is all. "And yet it is the base which controls the movements of the Mission beyond that snowline seen dimly in the far distance. It is on the capacity of men at the have that the Mission depends for its life. break-down here, and the escort and the Politi cal Officers would be floundering, as helpless as a steamer with a broken shaft. If Colonel Younghusband is the Captain, the Base Commandant, and his assistants, and resourceful conductor are engine-room staff.

It ought to be noted that the business of supplying the necessary transport and provisions both of food and clothing to the Mission has been rendered doubly difficult by the fact that the people of this part of the country kind of childlike independence, which it requires the greatest tact to understand and manage. However s'ubborn he may be, one cupidity. But this hill-men are not to be bribed. They are for ever changing their minds. another mement they will only hire it, and another moment they will have mounted its back and galloped frantically away, not from any love for the beast, like the Arab of romance. but just because the fancy has taken them. was upon such material that the Supply and Transport Corps had to begin its work. By sort of discipline. It is the rule of the Supply and Transport Corps to hire transport whenever possible, not because it is easier; but because it is cheaper,

Not all the transport on the route between here and Chumbi is hired, but a great portion of it is, and, at the present moment, possibly: the whole of it would have been, but for a disaster which in another army would have meant dire calamity, Disease broke out among the animais. The promptest methods of isolation and disinfection were adopted, and in the higher altitudes mules from the Punjab were sent to replace the sake, obtained with so much difficulty from Nepal. The Punjabi mule is an evil heast, but endurance seems to have no limit. It has turned out that these animals are bearing the cold even better than the yaks. The rarified sir does not even affect their breathing.

is would be unfair when mentioning the hard work that is being done without any fuss at Silliguri to overlook the devotion to duty that is being displayed by the railway staffbere. On the North-Western Railway, of course, the business of handling troops and supplies has almost come to be every-day matter. In the Punish and the Frontier Province there is a trained sailway staff, containing several military officers and numbers of ex-soldiers in all kinds of grades. But it is a different matter here, and f the station master at Silliguri can now claim to be an expert in dealing with military stores and regime of mules and the like, it is not because he has had a continuel experience for years, but because he has worked night and day for mosths. His duties have just begun, and not ended, as some passengers seem to imagine, when that aurly morning toy-train has pulled away on its noisy climb to Darjeeling.

Other Departments which are quietly help-ing the Mission with the least possible fuss and to the greatest possible advantage are the Field Post saff Telegraph offices; who are following the advance. It is backly exalised what a deal of pervice and advances. Indian postal and talegraph officials can boast of. Where an army or an electricial can boast of. THE British Admiralty evidently contemplates the extensive adoption of oil fuel for warships in the near future. Three old gunboats at Portsmouth have been transformed into oil hulks, their engines, guns, and everything below deck having been removed and replaced are gifted, if one might use the word, with a by tanks for oil, with a pump by which fluid may be raised for filling oil tanks on battleship. "HIS EXCELLENCY."

There was a crowded audience at the Theatre Royal on Saturday evening to witness the performance of His Excellency, a comic opera by W. S. Gilbert and Dr. Osmund Carr. There is little that can be said in favour of the play itself, which is singularly weak in music, libretto and plot, and great credit is due to our amateurs for the fact that, with such small aid from the authors of the piece they interpreted, they nevertbeless succeeded in frequently provoking the applause of the numerous spectators. The music of His Excellency is completely lacking in that brightness and swing one expects to find called catchey or sprightly, and to the listener it seems that its composer must have sought inspiration from our old-time nursery rhymes in order to secure the impression of monotonous sameness which his work produces. Of the plot, which is of the thinnest, there is little to be said, and then can be no doubt that only first-rate acting can put any interest into the play. It is certain that, as a musical and dramatical creation, His Excellency is not likely to live any length of time. The leading roles were well filled. His Excellency the Governor. Mr. George Lammert as Earling, the sculptor, and Dr. Hall-Wright as Tortensen, a young physician. somewhat stiff in his delivery and the second lacked sentiment, which was probably due to a slight timidity on his part. A special mention should be made of Mr. Phillips, who, at very short notice, undertook the part of Dame Cortland and made of it a great success, His humour is excellent and he succeeded in frequently provoking the hearty laughter of the spectators, Surgeon Leigh Norris, R.N. and Captain Bushe, R.A. are to be complimented for the performance of their parts as the Syndic and the Prince Regent. Surgeon R. R. Horley R.N. was excellent in the role of the corporal of Hussars. Of the ladies, Mrs. Hall-Wright and Mrs. Hagen, as Nanna and Thera, the daughters of the Governor, both acted exceedingly well, their singing, dancing and joux-de-scene being -fortunately did not meet with the ingratitude of the first order. MARRIAGE OF HOM. GERSHOW STEWART and another

AT SHANGHAL TO

A very pretty wedding took place at Holy Trinity Cathedral on 9th inst., reports the N. C. D. News, when Mr. Gershom Stewart, exchange broker, of Hongkong, espoused the charming Miss Gresson, sister of Mr. W. Gresson, managing partner at Shanghai for the firm of Jardine, Matheson & Co. The Company's hulk Yuen Fah was gaily decorated with flags all day, and many of the employes attended the service at the Cathedral. This was decorated with unusual care and taste. The altar rails were backed with red stuff, and covered with marguerites, jonquils and greenery. Plants in pots were arranged if verdurous terraces on either hand. In the back ground, the panels of the reredos carl ried trails of ivy. Up the central alsle, the customary avenue of bamboos was erected the obtrusive branchlets incoveniencing the millinery weavers. In one corner was the Town Band, whose services were requisitioned in place of the organ now under repair, and who were conducted by Mr. Valenza. The full choir was also in attendance. Miss Hawksley was the senior bridesmaid and two small maids, also attending were Miss Betty Addis and Miss Theo Boisragon. The duties of "best man". were efficiently discharged by Mr. E. S. Sanders.

Following the ceremony there was a fully attended reception at the Ewo hong premises, where the very numerous and handsome presents were displayed and greatly admired, and where Mr. Addis in fitting terms proposed the health of the bride and birdegroom, mentioping that Mr. Stewart had been present at his (Mr. Addis's) wedding. The bridgeroom replied and gave the toast of the bridesmaids for whom Mr. Sanders made an excellent spokesman, Mr. and Mrs. Gershom Stewart left shortly afterwards for "Unkers," kindly lent by Mr. and Mrs. Jenner Hogg now in Europe.

THE STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE OF SINGAPORE.

- Brille of the BY DOUGLAS M. GANE.

In nothing can the hand of Providence be more clearly discerned than the laying of the foundations of the British Empire. Positions that now form the key to our strength were acquired for reasons that have no reference to the purposes they have since come to serve. In in a comic opera; there are no airs that can be most cases they were the reward of personal exploit, and formed no apparent link in the larger architectural scheme. An example of what would seem to be the casual manner in which the British Empire has been built up fi Singapore, When acquired for Great Britain, its importance was perceived to have nothing. more than a local bearing. The high strategic value which it promises to acquire from the clash of European interests in Asia was not parently not foreseen. As a matter of vacti Singapore was accupied simply with a vidación Lieut Davidson R.A., was very good indeed as maintaining British influence to the Malay Archipelago. By the occupation of feverand Sumatas, the Dutch had already secured the Great Britain, by the acquisition of Singapore had now gained control of the other. At that period the Straits of Sunda was the more important route of the two, since the passage from Europe in those days-as we may judge from the fact that in 1857 Lord Wolsely was wrecked on the island of Banca on his way to China -was made by way of the Cape, With the construction of the Sung Canal, however, time brought its revenges. The Straits of Sunda gave place in importance to the Straits to Malacca, and the command of the great higher way of traffic with the Far, Rest accordingly passed from the Dutch to-the British! Sir Stamford Raffles-the value of whose service to his country has not yet been fully perceived British of the destiny of their race, for some Maitland and Hazeland were good as Bienca, time the Home Government was under ides and Rise. The acting and singing by the whather Singapore should be retained. The political importance of this station has the extreme, though there is some stiffness in I in great measure been overshadowed in the the ballet. Dresses and scenery were of the minds of the British people by its exceptional commercial interests. It has been termed the Liverpool of the East, and it has come to serve as the clearing-house of Southern and Eastern Asia. In its streets are to be heard a greater variety of tongues, perhaps, than in any other city of the world. Yet even these characteristics, notable as' they are, do not comprise the full record of its merits. To sum up, what was said of Gibraltar can now with equal truth be said of Singapore, at least in regard to its possibilities, and it is this—that Singapore affords us, at a critical spot, a secure base of naval operations and a sheltered field for naval mobilisation; it supplies us with a point of observation, and a place for storage of ammunition, provisions and, not of least importance coal; and it gives us these in a locality where, in the defence of our Asiatic interests, such advantages can be used with the most effect strategically and the most profit politically.

It may be contended, however, that, though Singapore may command the Straits of Malaces, it does not control the junction of the Indian and Pacific Oceans, since it does not command the Straits of Sunda. The Straits of Sunda liè nearly five hundred miles to the south of Singapore, and though they afford only a narrow passage they are approached from the east by the Karimata Sea, that at its opening between Singapore and Borneo has a width of some three hundred miles. Singapore cannot, therefore, control the Straits of Sunda in the sense in which it controls the Straits of Malacca; but it will hardly be questioned that, in so far as naval operations alone can seal the passage, our ships will work under enormous advantages so"long as Singapore remains in our hands as an effective naval base. Our occupation of Singapore has hitherto been unquestioned. That it will always remain so is unlikely. The new condition of things that prevails in the Far East has added a new importance to it, and has rendered it imperative that its means of defence should be equal to any emergency.

Fundamentally, but not solely, our employment of Singapore will have reference to the designs of Russia in Asia. We find Russia is denied. compelled by natural conditions, the force of which she cannot escape, to bid for naval supremacy in the China Seas. But Korea may not resist aborption, the efforts of Japan notwithstanding. Will Russia in that case cease to cultivate sea power in the Far East? It may safely be said that the territorial conditions that have led her to become a sea Power at all will not be affected by changes of so local a character. With the establishment of her position in Northern China, Russia will be ready for new adventure. The day may not yet be at hand when we shall witness the entry Persian Gulf, but it cannot be doubted that Russia is bent on pursuing there those Eastern methods of diplomacy that she has used to vigilabre is needed if her manœuvres are to country. The Craigengower Club was besten on ishe has made in the consolidation of her posi-Saturday by the H.K. C. C. Reserve's who tion in Northern China in the eight years that scored 134 for 8 wickets as against the formers' lhave elapsed since the termination of the 81-A fine victory was secured by the Civil | Chino-Japanese war, we must recognise the Service over the Royal Engineers, who only possibility of further aggressions and not fail managed to knock-up 35 against the civilians' ito take precautions against the consequences If for this reason alone, a position of such strategical importance as Singapore demands the most careful national guardienship. But there is another reason, one of more immediate consequence, perhaps, and it is this. The gradual break-up of China threatens at no distant date to transform the Far East into a field of European conflict, and, if that come to pass, no European Power that is opposed to us will fail to find in Singapore a standing menace t the realisation of its ambitions. A station therefore, that is calculated to evoke such general hostility cannot be too strongly defended, and it may well be asked if those who with entrusted with the management of our defence afford it the consideration commensurate with its worth? Advantage has been taken of the natural facilities afforded by the ground to fortify it, but so limited are these by comparison with those of Gibraltar that it may be seriously doubted if they are adequate to protect the enormous interests the place represents. Though Singapore has much in common with Gibraltar, is must be taken to have this difference—namely, that, whereas "the Rock" is capable of defending not only itself but the fleet in addition, Singapore for its defence is largely dependent on the fleet. Yet, unlike Gilbraltar, with which the Mediterranean Squadron is in near touch, Singapore holds a comparative isolated position in the scheme of naval distribution. The East India Squadron at Trincomalee, a base of no particular stragetic value, and distant from Singapore some 1,500 miles. The China Fleet is at Hongkong, distant 1,400 miles, and the Australian command of the Straits of Sunda, one of the! Squadron is at Port Jackson at a distant roughly did exceedingly well; though the first is only two available routes to the East, and of 3,000 miles. Detachments from each could no doubt reach the Straits in the course of a few days, but is it desirable that the key to maritime supremacy in Southern Asia should depend for the naval defence it needs upon force that take several days to marshal, and, until they appear, upon the single cruiser that has hitherto done service for the protection of the town, 'It would seem that the security of Sinkapore cannot with safety be considered apart from the adequacy, of its home defences. The Carnervon Commission, under whose consideration the defences of Singapore came, sat more than twenty years ago, and as there was no reason at that time to forsee the disintegration of China and the advances that Russia has since made in Asia, it is reasonable to infer that the Commissioners did not consider the country called upon to make provision tor possibilities of such magnitude. In the political conditions that prevailed at the time they were justified in regarding Singapore primarily in the light of a commercial entrepot, and sanctioning defences accordingly. But conditions have changed, and whatever importance Singapore may have as a trade centre, peramount nterest for us now lies in its strategic value as

JAPANESE REJOICINGS.

THE CHEMULPO AND PORT ARTHUR VICTORIES.

Wiring on the twelfth, our Correspondent states that enthusiastic rejoicings are taking place in the principal cities of Japan in honour of the victories at Port Arthur and Chemulpo. There can be no doubt that the Japanese people have reason to congratulate themselves on the skill of their naval officers and the courage of their sailors; and it is probable that the serious loss experienced by the Russian fleet at the outset may have a very important influence on the ultimate results of the war. It is a remarkable fact that the official telegrams received here by the Naval Authorities indicate the losses incurred in Russian ships as very much more serious than is wired by Admiral Alexeieff to his Government and forwarded in by Reuter. We can be excused in supposing that the news sent here by our fleet on the North is more reliable than details of Russian source; and it would seem that eleven Muscovite war-vessels, with a tonnage of about one-third of the total displacement of their fleet, have been sunk, destroyed or captured. All chance of Russia landing troops in Japan is now out of question; for she has barely enough ships left to resist descent on her own scaboard, and would certainly not be able to provide escort for a fleet of transports.

BARON ROSEN'S DEPARTURE. Baron Rosen left Yokohama on the 12th by the French mail, and our correspondent tells us that there were many friends and declaration of war will be made. But the Tsar sympathisers to bid him adieu The Russian Minister to Japan was a favourite in the society of the Capital, and as the quarrel of the nation is with Russia and not with an Nothing is heard here about the mediation individual, it is probable that his departure was a source of regret to many.

AGGRESSION BY THE VLADIVO-

STOK FLEET. The attack by the Russian warships on Japanese merchantmen is confirmed by our not expected that Japanese troops will land on been expected the cruisers from Vladivostok are operating on the northern coast of the Island Empire. The sinking of the Nakonoura Maru is confirmed, and it is probable Heavy fights are reported from the vicinity that raids may be made on the numerous Hokkaido (Yezo); indeed it is reported that these vessels bombarded Fukuyama on the 12th. It may be reasonably supposed that the Japanese authorities have dispatched a nava lforce to act against this flying squadron, and it is probable that the news received by the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, and published in our columns on Saturday, to the effect that three of these cruisers had been sunk by the nese Eastern Railway Company has received three of these cruisers had been sunk by the telegraphic news from their Nagasaki office, destroyers from Aomori, is true. It may be that this has some connection with the measures taken to stay the action of Russia's Commerce destroyers.

THE IMMEDIATE EFFECT OF WAR. The following article is culled from the columns of a well-informed financial journal and should be of interest to many of our readers: -Inasmuch as almost any moment may give the markets an opportunity for deciding practically their iterated speculation as to what would be the immediate effect of war, it is of more than academic interest to notice how the opinion runs round the House that an outbreak of hostilities would be the signal for a sharp rise. The base of the argument is, of course, supplied by the bear account now open, not only in the speculative but in the investment markets of the House. Jobbers who deal in the most sober securities have had little compunction in selling stock that they probably had not got, but which they expected would come to market if the artillery of war were to frighten holders into realising. Among speculative descriptions, the difficulty experienced by the bears in carrying over testifies to the shortness of stock, and when once the sellers are satisfied by the outbreak of what they had "gone for," the argument continues that they will close the commitments then and there if they can. Taking the test of House experience, it is urged that Trunks, for instance, are sold rather than bought upon a good traffic, that the fulfilment of high dividend anticipations in any market is frequently followed by a fall in prices, and that, generally speaking, the consummation of the expected leads to profit-taking. Whether this will be so in the present state of affairs or not, the events of the next few days should certainly assist in deciding.

The N. Y K. office in Tokio recently wired to the captains of the Santo Maru and Nagato Mary to sail home at full speed from North Chinas The Sagami Maru, which was to leave Nagasaki for Gensan has been ordered British lay the blame with Russia, and express to abandon the voyage. The departure of the Skinano Maru from Kobe for Hongkong, via ports, has also been cancelled. The vessel had already left the jharbour when she was signalled to return. The cargo on board the ship was landed,

> On 4th inst. there were one British, one French, one German, two Russian, one Italian and one Korean warships at Chemulpo.

News is said to have reached Tokyo that the Japanese Government has purchased the U.S. battleships Kentucky and Oregon,

The Russian authorities have contracted to to buy 30,000 tons of Kaiping coal and have been loading it at Tingawantao.

The temperature at Gensan is very low and the sea is frozen to a thickness of 8 inches.

CENSORSHIP OF PRIVATE TELEGRAMS. By an "extra" to the Official Gazette (lapan) the Department of Communications has issued a Notification (No. 5) announcing that from February 5th until further notice foreign private telegrams sent from places in Japan, or from the Japanese post offices in Fusan, Chemulpo, and Seoul to places abroad, must be written in plain Japanese, English, or French, no code words being allowed. Code words, however, may be allowed in messages sent through the Tokyo, Yokohams, and Kobe telegraph, offices, provided a translation in Japanese, English, or French of the code words used accompanies, the telegram, Messages sent between Japan and those places in Korea where Japanese telegraph offices are situated must be written in ordinary Japanese, English, or French, no code words being allowed.

It is also announced that private telegrams tabulary force, 200, cavairs, 40, infantry 160. sent from Korean telegraph offices, and de-Hsinmingtun; constabulary force 350, infantry livered by Japanere post offices in Korea or sent aboard through the medium of Japanese post offices, with the exception of telegrams in ordinary Japanese, English; or French, will not be transmitted over the Japanese lines. All telegrams sent over the ilnes in Japan as well as over the Imperial Japanese Government lines between Fusan, Seoul, and Chemulpo, will until further notice be liable to delay or non-delivery, and no message will be accepted without the assent of the sender to these conditions. FREIGHT.

In their report dated 13th inst., Messrs. Lamke and Rogge write:-The freight market has remained in an exceedingly animated state since writing last and a very large business has been put through at steadily hardening rates. The political situation and the actual outbreak of hostilities in the North are no doubt the principal factors in the present upward movement; a large number of neutral steamers has been picked up and is still being chartered here and at Shanghai, in consequence of which the amount of tonnage available for the regular trade in the South has been gradually becoming so scarce that rates of freight were bound to follow an upward tendency.

From Saigon to this port, a fair amount of chartering has come to pass and rates have further advanced to 23 cents per picul, though, towards the close there is a somewhat easier feeling chiefly attributable to a falling off in the demand here for Japan which has caused the local rice market to decline. There however, every probability that matters wil mend soon and that the present luli in Saigon Hongkong, freights will prove of but short duration.

From Saigon for Philipps, ports, business has been done at greatly improved rates, viz. 38 and 40 cents per picul for small carriers, and further tonnage may be wanted ere long, but steamers of small size have become extremely scarce. Nothing has been done from Saigon .for any other destination.

Hence to Japan, large shipments of grain have gone forward both by liners and chartered steamers; chartered rate for the latter having been 20 cents per picul. As already indicated. there is less inquiry at the moment, though it is unlikely that shipments will be resumed at an

From Bingkok to this, rates have likewise improved, but so far the trade has remained in the hands of liners, outside boats not being reported locally, From Japan coal ports to this, under the influence of a strong demand, rates have advanced to $2.30 per fon at which figure a number of charters has been drawn, and further tonnage is wanted end of this month and also March loading. Moji/Swatow $2.50 per ton has been paid. For Singapore, no fresh settlements are reported.

From Java to this, no fresh business is

On time basis, a large business has once more transpired, the demand running chiefly for light draft boats with wooden decks, Hongkong passenger license and some saloon accommodation and fair rates have been granted for suitable

HONGKONG METEOROLOGICAL SIGNALS. A NEW CODE

We have received from the Honghong Observatory a new code of matsorological signals which comes into force at Hongkong on New Year's Day. They are the same as those at present in use at Shaughai, and will be boisted on the mast beside the time-ball a Kowloon Point for the information of masters of vessels leaving the port. They do not necessarily imply that bad weather is expected. The signals are as follows:-

A cone point upwards indicates a typhobia to the North of the Colony.

A cone point upwards land drum below indicates a typhoon to the North-East of the
